Prize guy: Chris Freen, with his winning drawing and his son Hunter

Drawing approval

ARTIST Christopher Green has scooped a top prize after spending three months standing outside a McDonald's drawing the urban hustle and bustle of a London lunchtime street scene.

The professional artist, who specialises in large monochrome ink drawings, scooped the £15,000 first prize in the prestigious competition for draughtsmanship and figurative painting run by the Worshipful Company of Painter-Stainers and the Lynn Foundation charity.

He won the prize with his work titled Lunchtime, Liverpool Street, which he drew standing outside the Liverpool Street branch of McDonald's between April and June last year, spending so much time there that he was on first-name terms with staff.

The 37-year-old, who lives in Turnpike Lane, learned of his success at the awards ceremony at the Mall Galleries in St James's, central London.

Accompanying him on to the podium was his seven-year-old son Hunter.

Speaking afterwards, Chris said: "This is a huge boost for my confidence. I've been drawing for eight years and lose money on my work. This will make life much easier."

His winning drawing is being exhibited at the Mall Galleries with the 105 other shortlisted entries until Saturday.

COUNCIL DEFENDS HDV PLAN

Controversial scheme 'will deliver jobs and housing', says Strickland as cabinet confirms preferred partner

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

HARINGEY Council has paved the way for its highly controversial £2billion regeneration plan to transfer land and thousands of council homes to a private company, which it will half-own with a developer.

The Labour-run local authority's scheme to establish the Haringey Development Vehicle (HDV) has faced a storm of protest from councillors on both sides of the town hall chamber as well as housing activists, having been deferred to allow more time to run the rule over it.

Opponents say the scheme – aimed at delivering 5,000 new homes as well as a new town centre in Wood Green over 20 years – is too risky because of its sheer scale and because the council would not have the financial reserves to bail it out if it failed.

There is also concern that thousands of tenants from estates earmarked for demolition won't be rehoused on their former estates and that many of the additional new homes won't be "affordable".

The council's cabinet confirmed developer Lendlease as its preferred partner at a meeting last week.

By retaining ownership of the land, the council receives a 50-50 split of the profits, which, it says, will be ploughed back into providing council services.

Discussions about how the regeneration partnership will operate and be managed will now begin before a final decision on whether to proceed with the HDV is made by the council in the summer.

"Confirming Lendlease as our preferred partner is a major step forward for our plans to

Staying in control: Councillor Alan Strickland, cabinet member for housing, regeneration and planning deliver homes, jobs and opportunities for local people," said Alan Strickland, cabinet member for housing, regeneration and planning

"A 50-50 partnership approach means we stay in control over how council land is developed while sharing the profits, which can go back into further regeneration, affordable housing and funding the services we provide to residents."

Summer tennis coaching is sure to be a winner

BUDDING Andy Murrays and Johanna Kontas could be waiting to be discovered with Haringey's schools benefiting from six weeks of free tennis coaching.

Special coaching sessions are being held for reception to Year 5 pupils during normal school hours as part of a series of tennis initiatives at the New River Sports and Fitness Leisure Centre in White Hart Lane, Wood Green.

The six weeks of free tennis lessons are being run by the centre's operators, Fusion Lifestyle, in partnership with Haringey Council.

The centre is also running a new after-school junior tennis programme for six weeks in association with the Lawn Tennis Association, aimed at finding and fostering tennis talent in the area.

And the centre will be holding tennis camps during the Easter and summer school holidays.

John Kaponi, an ATP certified coach and Lifestyle Fusion's head of tennis, said: "We are committed to grass-roots tennis development in Haringey and across north London."

"We want to give young people the chance to find out what a brilliant sport tennis is and we feel our free school initiative and new junior tennis programme is a great way to do this."

All in the line of duty: Dog-Tanyon chews things over after another successful case

Dog-Tanyon helps to deliver some ruff justice

POLICE have hailed a determined dog for helping to corner a knifeman.

Dog-Tanyon and his police dog handler were instrumental in the arrest of two men in Enfield.

They were caught after residents spotted the knifeman in the street. A police helicopter also helped in the search, tweeting about its success on Sunday.

And Dog-Tanyon – named, presumably after d'Artagnan from the Three Musketeers stories – was praised for his hard work.

In a Facebook post, Enfield police said: "The very fluffy but very determined Dog-Tanyon chased down two men who ran from police in High Street, Ponders End."

"An eagle-eyed member of the public called police when they saw a man running along the street with a knife, chasing someone. The knife was a large hunting knife and has no place on the streets of Enfield. The caller was obviously distressed by this.

Police responded quickly and, with the help of CCTV scanning the area, located the two men walking in the street with the knife on show. They added: "The two men ran from police towards South Street and police contained them within a small area."

"The police helicopter was called to assist and flew overhead looking for the men who were hiding. Dog-Tanyon and his fantastic police handler tracked down the two men and also found the knife close to them. Both were detained and arrested."

"Dog-Tanyon was happy to receive his ball to chew on as a reward for removing another dangerous weapon from Enfield streets."

Cycle plans 'put posties at risk'

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

CYCLE route plans are putting Royal Mail workers at risk of being robbed, it has been claimed.

A proposal to move a lay-by from outside Palmers Green post office, in Green Lanes, across the road, has been attacked by the postmaster, who says its future is in doubt.

And the Royal Mail says the plan poses a safety issue, carrying large quantities of cash and other valuable items a considerable distance by foot, or crossing a busy road junction.

The lay-by switch is being considered as part of the Cycle Enfield plans to create more cycle routes in the borough.

Ben Ryall, Royal Mail collections manager, said: "We collect valuable items, which can be worth up to £5,000."

"The council has offered us a lay-by across the road instead of next to the site. My concern is the risk of staff being robbed as they make deliveries. It is a busy post office and we visit it a lot."

Postmaster Parimal Bhatt said: "Since becoming postmaster four years ago I have invested a huge amount of time and money, making Palmers Green post office a far more attractive and pleasant place to visit."

"With the internet, post offices have lost a large proportion of business and have had to diversify to survive. However, we still have our regular customers and I feel that my post office is a hub for the local community. I would hate to see it go."

David Burrowes, Enfield Southgate MP, who visited the site this week, said: "The likely problems for Palmers Green post office from the cycle lane highlights the lack of consultation and consideration of the concerns of high street businesses."

"Enfield Council needs to do what it should have done last year which is sit down with post office and Royal Mail managers and work out a solution."

Daniel Anderson, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "We are working to find a resolution to the concerns. A meeting has been scheduled and is due to take place this week to discuss both the short-term issue of collections during the construction period as well as the options available to ensure these can continue in the longer term once construction is complete."

"Cycle Enfield is committed to transforming our high streets and town centres while promoting more active forms of travel through the borough. We understand loading is critical for businesses to function and will work closely with all parties to ensure a better Enfield for all."

Forty people attended a public meeting last Friday in the Green Towers Community Centre, in Plevna Road, Edmonton, to oppose proposals to franchise Lower Edmonton post office, in South Mall. They heard Edmonton MP, Kate Osamor say that the population of Edmonton was increasing and she would raise the issue in parliament.

Pupils play it safe

PRIMARY school pupils explored road safety awareness issues by taking part in interactive workshops.

Five Schools got involved in the Streets Ahead programme, run by Konflux Theatre in Education to look at key issues from the perspective of a pedestrian.

Thirty youngsters from Worcesters Primary, in Goat Lane, Enfield, were among those who got involved and were encouraged in role-playing scenarios that could occur on the road.

The workshops also highlighted the dangers of being distracted by mobile phones or by texting when approaching and crossing roads.

Appropriate behaviour on public transport was also discussed in groups and youngsters developed their confidence, as well as public speaking and listening skills.

At the end of the workshop they were treated to a play which highlighted road safety issues and offered tips on how to keep safe and how to use road crossings.

"It was a thoroughly enjoyable day," said Worcesters' assistant headteacher Daniel Ching. "They gained a lot of knowledge about road safety."

"It was especially important because there are regular issues with congestion outside our school and the council is looking at ways to improve it."

"Our children love acting and we have a drama teacher visit each week, so they were really enthusiastic in the workshops."

Konflux Theatre in Education is a performing arts company which uses creative play to educate young people.

Road safety message: Linda Berisha, Ledio Ramadani, Wafa Suratgar and Rex Quayee take part in the interactive workshop Streets Ahead at Worcesters Primary School last week

The company provided the workshops in partnership with Enfield Council and also visited Honilands Primary, in Lovell Road, Enfield, Carterhatch Junior, in Carterhatch Lane, Enfield, Alma Primary, in Alma Road, Ponders End, and St Edmund's Primary, in Hertford Road, Edmonton.

Ayfer Orhan, the council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, said: "The concept of these workshops gives the students the opportunity to educate their peers with important road safety messages while feeling a sense of achievement."

Special delivery: Club president Geoff James and former president John Wells before distributing the Easter eggs

Eggs-tra special!

KIND-HEARTED members of Edmonton Rotary Club had a cracking time distributing Easter eggs to "worthy causes" in the borough.

They handed out 25 of the chocolate treats to "egg-static" schools and various charities to help them raise money for their own causes.

Geoff James, president of the club, explained: "We buy them from a wholesalers in Bedford and then give them out to schools and charities.

"Often they go on to raffle them to try to raise money for school equipment or what ever they want. In a few cases we give them to our members and then the funds come back into Rotary funds."

The club has been fundraising this way for the past five years.

Gill's joining up with former dance pals for Dame Vera's 100th birthday tribute

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A STAR-STUDDED variety show to celebrate Dame Vera Lynn's 100th birthday takes place at the London Palladium on Saturday evening – and among the performers will be a former professional dancer from Enfield.

Gill Spibey was a member of the Dougie Squires Second Generation dance group 33 years ago, which has reformed especially for the occasion.

The 56-year-old, of Silver Street, Enfield Town, will join 70 other ex-members of the dance troupe, aged between 40 and 70, on the famous stage in a spectacular concert

Stars of stage and screen including Bradley Walsh, Russell Watson, Alan Titchmarsh, Anthony Andrews, Sir Tim Rice, Wayne Sleep and Esther Rantzen as well as many others are coming together in an extravaganza honouring the life of the "forces sweetheart", who will be present.

Gill, who works as a yoga teacher, was invited to take part by her former boss Dougie Squires, who is directing and choreographing the show, after former members of his troupe got together for a reunion last year and began meeting regularly for dance classes at the west London studio where they used to rehearse.

"It was wonderful to meet friends and old faces I hadn't seen for more than 30 years," she said. "In the show we are performing the opening dance sequence from the recent Oscar-winning movie La La Land, which is quite challenging, especially when you haven't danced in more than three decades."

"Your mind thinks you're still a 20-year-old, but your body tells you different," she confessed.

Gill describes the opportunity to appear on the stage of the iconic theatre and to celebrate Dame Vera's centenary as a privilege.

"She was renowned as the entertainer who kept troops spirits up during the war, putting her own personal safety at risk to tour Egypt, India and Burma to perform for the Allied forces," said Gill.

"Her contribution to boosting the nation's morale in the darkest days of war with songs including We'll Meet Again and The White Cliffs of Dover is immeasurable."

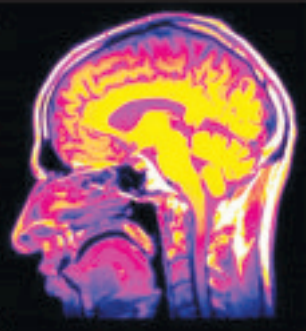

"She is beloved by my parents' generation and I feel honoured to be entertaining her and helping raise funds for Dame Vera's children's charity," she added.

Veteran of the circuit: Chris Matthews, who runs a silver and gold stall

Antiques show

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

OLDIES but goldies – ancient (well, quite old anyway) treasures still attract customers looking for a bargain, or a rare, special item.

Antiques traders bring their wares to St Stephen's church hall, in Bush Hill Park, every second Saturday of the month.

And there was an array of trinkets and treats in store last weekend for buyers looking for that little something different.

The event was organised by Pasquale Antiques and Vintage Fairs, which is staging several more later this year.

For veteran dealer Chris Matthews, 71, of Palmers Green, the event is a regular part of his life.

He sells silver and jewellery and said: "I've been coming for 20-30 years now and I'm selling to the children of my original customers.

"It was a bit quiet this week as I think people are recovering from spending over Christmas, but sometimes it's exceptionally good trade and it can also depend on the weather.

"I get a lot of my stuff from auctions, fairs and car boot sales and I sell them on at fairs like this one."

The next antiques fair at St Stephen's, in Park Avenue, is on Saturday, April 8.

Convicted of intimidating murder trial witness

Found guilty: Akram Chemlal, top, and Roland Morrison

TWO Enfield men have been convicted for perverting the course of justice after a witness in a murder trial was intimidated.

Akram Chemlal, 18, of Burleigh Way, and Rowland Morrison, 19, of Stonycroft Close, Enfield Highway, were found guilty in a trial at Blackfriars Crown Court on Friday.

A third man, Frank Tamale, 24, from Slough, Berkshire, was found guilty of the same charge.

The case emerged after 19-year-old wins Deo and Charles Tamale, of St Edmunds Road, Edmonton, were convicted of stabbing 23-year-old Khiry Ford in the chest outside a birthday celebration after Mr Ford had tried to help partygoers who had been attacked and robbed by a group of young men including the Tamale brothers.

Mr Ford was at the party in Haselbury Road, Edmonton, in November 2014 when he was attacked. He died in an ambulance on his way to hospital.

In December 2015, the Tamales were sentenced to life imprisonment, to serve a minimum 22 years, for murder, conspiracy to rob and conspiracy to pervert the course of justice.

In January 2015, while Charles Tamale was on remand, he established contact with his brother Frank Tamale and Morrison and references were made to threaten an individual whom they regarded as a "snitch".

In April 2015, a witness statement – which was passed to the defence team as required – was posted to an individual's social media account twice. Chemlal was arrested the following day on suspicion of offences including witness intimidation.

A search of the Twitter feed used to intimidate the witness resulted in the discovery of an image of a Christmas card from the Enfield Gangs Unit. The distribution of these cards was a crime prevention scheme warning known offenders to desist from criminality.

The card in the photograph was addressed to "Akram". Further inquiries linked the Twitter handle to Chemlal's Facebook page.

While on remand Deo Tamale also made contact with his brother Frank and Morrison and a number of the conversations centred around targeting the witness whose statement had been posted on Twitter.

The witness intimidated via Twitter was separate to the individual referred to by Morrison and Frank Tamale in January 2015.

Frank Tamale was jailed for two years while Chemlal and Morrison were both sentenced to be detained a young offenders' institution. Chemlal received nine months and Morrison was given 12 months.

Detective Chief Inspector Mark Lawson, from the homicide and major crime command, said: "These individuals went to great lengths to intimidate and cause fear to the witness who had come forward to assist police with the murder inquiry."

"Prior the murder trial, Chemlal audaciously published online a witness statement disclosed to the defence counsel in his best effort to scare the individual into retracting their statement."

"Not only was this witness targeted, but these men set about unearthing the identities of anyone else who had provided any information to the police in the hope that they too would be silenced and those responsible for Khiry's murder would not be prosecuted."

Stabbed: Khiry Ford was attacked outside a party at a house in Edmonton

‘Intervention can prevent fatalities’

Unit at the sharp end of gang violence

By Clare Casey
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

SET off to the side of the emergency department in North Middlesex University Hospital is a bed surrounded by bright children’s stickers of dinosaurs and butterflies.

This is the bed where doctors fight to stabilise school-age youngsters admitted with knife wounds and other violent injuries.

Staff in the children’s A&E department at the hospital, in Wilbury Way, Edmonton, treat about 150 youngsters a day – 40,000 a year.

Some of those are admitted as a result of youth-on-youth violence.

Like every NHS department, it’s cash-strapped and is grateful for the £7,700 awarded by the Home Office to the Oasis Youth Support team – attached to A&E at North Middlesex.

The paediatric youth violence team was set up in October 2014 to help hospital staff provide support to youngsters who kept reappearing in A&E due to anger management problems, assaults, fights and stabbings.

Terrifying statistics show that incidents happen not on Friday and Saturday nights, like adult violence, but between 4pm and 5pm when children are on their way home from school.

Similar projects now run in London’s major trauma centres.

But what makes the North Middlesex University Hospital project so powerful is that it isn’t a major trauma centre – so doctors treat much younger patients for violent injuries.

Dr Gayle Hann is the paediatric consultant for A&E and the named doctor for child protection at North Middlesex.

She said: “We’re not a trauma centre here, so most of those cases will go to the Royal London Hospital [in Whitechapel].

“But we do have people walk in with knife wounds and even gunshot wounds and we’ll assess them and stabilise them here, or if necessary airlift them to the Royal London.

“If we can target those kids brought in after punching walls and try and help them with their anger management and violent episodes, then that’s a great focus on prevention.

“By intervening now, we hope we can prevent them becoming fatalities.”

“This project hasn’t actually cost the NHS anything. If they end up in ITU (intensive care unit), you’re looking at hundreds of thousands of pounds.

“For us, this is a great additional service to be able to offer young people.”

It’s not a problem specific to Enfield, it’s a London-wide issue and the government has pledged an ongoing commitment to ending gang violence and exploitation.

The cash will provide an additional youth worker in A&E at “peak” times and a girls-only group on Thursday evenings.

Rebekah “Becks” Phillips, 28, an A&E outreach worker, said: “About a quarter of the referrals are girls. Often we just act as a sounding board for them.

“We help girls up to the age of 25, but they tend to be 16 and 17. We focus on anger violence, knife violence and retaliation and talk about choices.

“With girls, there’s huge pressure centred around child sexual exploitation, social media, mental health issues, if they’ve witnessed violence and post-traumatic stress issues.

“They see they are not there to be judged. It’s a very good time to intervene in their lives.”

THERE'S nothing like budgets to get people going and in the past two weeks we've had two – the council's coming first, followed by Chancellor Philip Hammond's last Wednesday, bringing a mixture of good and bad news.

The council budget brought the bad news. Borrowing is to increase on a massive scale, projected to take total council debt during the next year close to £1billion – and the interest on it has to be paid from our taxes.

The scandal is that much of the new borrowing is not to build much-needed housing or care homes, but to set up and invest in a second property company. So we have the prospect of a property company run by Labour councillors with little experience gambling with your money.

Meanwhile, expenditure on parks is to be cut, probably involving toilets being closed, £50k less will be spent on improving safety in schools, putting some of our children at risk, and £500k less will be available for the voluntary sector. There's no money approved to maintain our roads and pavements, unless of course it's a cycle lane.

Thankfully, the other budget provided some good news. Some £2bn of new money will be provided by the government over three years to help fund adult social care. Enfield should receive around £11million over that period (£5.6m in 2017/18).

Proposals to raise this new money from increased taxation have not been welcomed universally. It's one of the dilemmas of government because generally speaking we all want more services, but do not have the same enthusiasm to pay for them ourselves.

Thalidomide victims are suffering to this day

I WAS interested to see that the excellent historical drama Call the Midwife has been running a plotline involving the drug Thalidomide.

Sadly, more than 50 years after the Thalidomide scandal was first exposed, it continues to blight the lives of thousands of people. Born severely disabled, they experience complex health problems. The condition of many continues to decline.

As a percentage of our population, the numbers are not huge. In the whole of London and the South East, for example, the Thalidomide Trust knows of 109 Thalidomide survivors.

Perhaps that is why the severe injustice they have suffered continues without apology, correction, or, in many cases across Europe, proper compensation.

I was privileged and humbled to host – with politicians from across the spectrum – the European Parliament screening of a film highlighting the plight of those damaged by Thalidomide. It starkly documents not only the profound nature of their health problems, but also the grave wrong they have suffered.

The audience in Brussels was struck by their endurance, their courage and the justness of their long, long campaign. Several EU countries have still not put in place a formal compensation scheme, while in others the payment available is not sufficient to meet victims' health and independent living costs.

Knowing what we now know, surely both the German manufacturer and the German government has an obligation to meet the needs of the few remaining European Thalidomide survivors?

Along with politicians from other parties, I am urging German ministers to meet representatives of the survivors. I hope they will give sympathetic consideration to the cases of victims in Denmark, Finland, Italy, Spain, Sweden...and here in London and the rest of Britain.

Hate can't win if we have hope and peace

REGARDING the event at Palmers Green Mosque on March 6.

We ran an interfaith event for young people. We strongly believe it is important that this message of positive diversity and unity is delivered in our local community.

The world we know unfortunately has been testing, to say the least. We are being judged more and more by our race, religion, culture and social status. Neighbourhood and communities are divided and weakened by allowing hate to flourish and giving a platform for it to breed.

The world is forgetting the need for good neighbours near and far.

As a Muslim youth group, Green Stars, based at Palmers Green Mosque, understands the importance of neighbours and it is an essential part of the community. Whether it is a neighbour in the street, or our neighbour in our community – local or international – we have a strong responsibility towards them to treat them kindly and serve them generously.

All together now: Youngsters at the Palmers Green Mosque open day

That is why we were so honoured to invite our Scout neighbours from the 6th Southgate group to join us on our Monday sessions and be part of our activities. Our members ran activities that gave our neighbours an understanding of the Islamic faith which was both fun and educational. The group took part in a fun Photobooth activity where they got to try on traditional Islamic clothing and capture memories in our Photobooth. The other activity taught the group about Arabic writing, where they got to paint their names in Arabic on tiles. They were invited to see how we pray and see how the mosque functions.

These events are so important to remind the world that we can be united and that hate can never win when there are opportunities for peace and hope.

Time to stick up for our schools

I AM writing to express my concern and anxiety about the impact of the government's proposed changes to funding for schools, in particular for pupils with special educational needs, coming on top of the £3million cut to the council's education support funds used to help teachers and schools.

I have invited headteachers to a meeting to discuss this situation and to increase the pressure we are putting on the government to recognise the level of need in Enfield and ensure our schools are funded properly.

I am very encouraged that Enfield parents, the NUT and other trade unions are working hard to get the message to the government. I encourage all of us to engage in the many local and national actions taking place to help us lobby for increased schools' funding. I strongly believe that the future of our children's education is at stake and we must do all we can to make our voices heard.

In the meantime, I urge residents to sign the Over 50s Forum's Fairer Funding for Enfield petition – www.change.org/p/enfield-borough-over-50s-fairer-funding-for-enfield.

Diversion of 191 is not adequate

SINCE February 22 the 191 bus has been on diversion due to an unstable building in Baker Street. The diversion sends the bus down Parsonage Lane, left into Southbury Road, left along Great Cambridge Road and then right into Carterhatch Lane towards Brimsdown, and vice versa on return route.

This deprives people living along the other side of Carterhatch Lane of a bus route. This end of the route serves two primary schools and a large GPs' surgery. There is a shorter diversion – along Willow Road, round Forty Hill roundabout and back – but Transport for London, despite complaints, are not taking this route. Come on TfL – people do not all have cars and many disabled people use the 191 service. If you think the W10 will do instead, it won't as it only runs hourly from 10am to 1pm.

Cystic fibrosis fundraiser's £6,200 in David's memory

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNG father who never got to see his twin son and daughter after his life was tragically cut short was the inspiration behind a charity fundraiser.

The event was held in memory of David Mason, who died from the hereditary disease cystic fibrosis.

The 38-year-old's two-year-old twins Lily Rose and James were at the fundraiser at the David Lloyd Centre, in Carterhatch Lane, Enfield, along with his widow Laura.

They joined with family, friends and staff to help raise a total of £6,220 for the Cystic Fibrosis Trust to fund vital research.

David learned he was to be a father just three months before his death in December 2013, having battled for 10 months against a rare lung infection which can be fatal for cystic fibrosis sufferers.

"David never believed there was anybody for him or that anybody would take him on with his condition, but when he met and married Laura it was a love match and they were devoted to each other," said his father Philip, 68, who helped organise the event at the centre where they were both members.

"He was delighted when he found out Laura was pregnant with twins and although he knew he was to be father, he sadly never got to see his little son or daughter, who were born six months after his death," he added.

Philip and David's mother Lynda, who live in Northaw, helped organise the special day.

It included a cake and bake, a raffle with prizes donated by local businesses, an auction of signed football memorabilia and a fitness bike challenge with David Lloyd staff and members competing to ride the furthest in individual one-hour stints over an eight-hour period.

The aim was raise money for research as well as raise awareness of the disease, caused by a faulty gene which is carried by more than two million people in the UK.

If two carriers have children, there is a one in four chance their child will have the condition which slowly destroys the lungs and digestive system with only half those diagnosed living beyond their 40th birthday.

David father Philip said he was overwhelmed by the generosity of everyone who had donated and volunteered their time to support the cause and thanked them for their contribution.

"There was a great community spirit. All the proceeds are now with the Cystic Fibrosis Trust to be used for further research into fighting a condition which takes the lives of people at such a young age," he added.

Business rate hike 'will hit traders', warns Kober

STRUGGLING traders and firms could face further financial hardship if the government's proposed hike in business rates goes ahead, says Haringey Council.

The local authority is urging Whitehall to hold off on introducing its forthcoming revaluation of the tax, which is paid by non-domestic properties such as shops, offices, factories, warehouses industrial units and pubs.

Rates are calculated on a property's rateable value based on its annual market rent which is determined by average rents in an area.

The council forecasts that bills could rise between five and 42 per cent for many of the borough's businesses and wants the government to delay implementing the increase or reduce the rise this year to avoid threatening economic growth.

Council leader Claire Kober claimed that pegging business rates to a national property valuation system failed to take account of rising property values in Haringey and London, where firms' profits have not kept pace with rising land values.

"Rather than rush into this, we want the government to pause and think again so that we can be confident that local businesses will not collapse under the weight of fresh financial pressures," she said.

"Instead of adopting a blanket national approach, the council wants to see a regional system for setting business rates, with local government given control over business rate levels, property valuations and local business rates relief schemes as part of the wider devolution of business rates."

Keep eyes healthy, see well into the future

The importance of regular eye tests for maintaining sight

With an ageing population and more people facing the prospect of working later into life, it has never been more important to look after our health; both to maintain our ability to work, and to be able to enjoy life to the full.

Eyesight is key to getting the most out of life, but it's also an aspect of health that is often overlooked. So what steps can we take to ensure our eyes remain at their sharpest?

Specsavers is working with the International Glaucoma Association (IGA) on a health information campaign to raise awareness of the importance of regular eye examinations. The £1m initiative will coincide with World Glaucoma Week, which runs from March 12-18.

'We're all familiar with the usual steps we can take to maintain a healthy lifestyle as we get older,' says Dr Nigel Best, Specsavers' clinical spokesperson. 'Fitbits and apps on our mobiles monitor our steps and sleep patterns - but our eye health can easily be neglected.'

RNIB (Royal National Institute of Blind People) and Specsavers' 'State of the Nation' report revealed that nearly 14 million people in the UK are not having their eyes tested every two years as recommended.

'Conditions that can often affect our eyes over the age of 40 range from high blood pressure to age-related macular degeneration and can be detected by an optician during the course of a regular eye examination,' Dr Best adds. 'The earlier any such conditions are picked up the higher the chance of successfully treating them, which is why we recommend eye tests every two years.'

Glaucoma - often described as the 'thief of sight' due to its gradual onset - is one such condition that is more easily managed the sooner it is detected. It affects 600,000 people in the UK and more than 64 million people worldwide making it the leading cause of irreversible blindness globally.

Karen Osborn, Chief Executive of the IGA, says: 'Glaucoma is found in 2% of the UK's population aged over 40. Most of those people have a slow developing form of the condition and we estimate that half of all cases - that's over 300,000 people - remain undiagnosed and are unaware that they could be slowly losing their sight.'

RNIB and Specsavers' research also revealed the total cost to the UK economy of sight loss in the adult population of the UK totalled £28.1 billion, leading to a huge burden on the economy due to easily preventable vision-related issues.

Sally Harvey, CEO of RNIB, adds: 'At least half of all sight loss is preventable. Regular eye tests and early detection on the high street, followed by timely intervention and management of eye health conditions, could help save your sight.'

Sisters are doing it for themselves

By Clare Casey
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A FEMINIST direct action group has hijacked advertising space in Enfield to highlight a lack of funding for domestic abuse victims.

More than 120 advertising spaces on Tubes, bus stops and billboards throughout north London – including Enfield – have been used by Sisters Uncut to expose the lack of areas available for victims of domestic abuse.

The stunt coincided with International Women’s Day and the second budget under Prime Minister Theresa May.

The posters highlight how many beds are available for victim refuge. There are just 29 beds in Enfield, with eight reserved for specialist services.

Last month the Prime Minister announced that she would bring in new regulations to help victims of domestic abuse and the group is using the budget as an opportunity to ask Mrs May to “put her money where her mouth is”.

Sisters Uncut was set up by domestic violence survivors and workers in the sector.

Member Janelle Brown said: “As an MP, Theresa May voted through the budget cuts that brought about this crisis in the first place, so it’s infuriating that she’s suddenly saying she’ll help domestic violence survivors. It’s so disingenuous. She’s spent the last five years kicking the whole support sector down and is now suddenly offering a hand-up.”

Another member Lara Jenkinson said: “Domestic violence legislation can’t take survivors by the hand and guide them to freedom. They need expert support and somewhere safe to live.

“If Theresa May truly cares, she needs to secure money for these lifesaving services.”

She added that these services help women escape abuse, daily fear and harm and their role is essential, especially given that the risk of murder is highest when a victim tries to leave.

Currently, a third of women are turned away from underfunded refuges in the UK.

The group is known for exploits including dying the water in Trafalgar Square red, jumping on to the red carpet at the premiere of the film Suffragette and blocking the doors of the Treasury.

Ms Brown added: “Domestic violence survivors will never be safe if funding is not secure.

“Sisters Uncut demands that funding for domestic violence services is ringfenced at a national level, so that local councils in north London can follow a long-term strategic plan and not leave survivors with nowhere to go.”

The aims of the group (but not necessarily some of its methods) were supported by Krystle Fonyonga, Enfield Council’s cabinet member for community safety and public health, who described government cuts as “short-sighted and totally unacceptable”.

She added: “They had an opportunity with International Women’s Day to make a commitment to the cause, but failed to do so.”

She said survivors of domestic abuse needed specialist support and funding for those services should be protected by the government.”

She said that specialists, the council, police and the voluntary sector all worked tirelessly to tackle domestic abuse, highlighting Enfield Council’s He Doesn’t Love You If campaign designed to empower young women and girls to spot signs of a controlling or abusive relationship.

North east surgery hub is put on hold

PATIENTS in part of Enfield are facing an uncertain wait over whether they will get local access to the extended evening and weekends doctors’ appointments service.

Three of the four proposed surgery hubs have now been set-up, serving the north west, the south east and the south west of the borough as part of a £1.8million scheme to make it easier to see a GP as well as reducing pressure on accident and emergency.

But the north east surgery hub has been put on hold until June when Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group will make a decision on whether a fourth facility is needed.

The delay has angered Enfield’s Over 50s Forum, whose president Monty Meth said: “Meanwhile, 80,000 people living in an area from Enfield Highway to Waltham Cross will find it increasingly difficult to access a hub.”

With over 900 pedestrian countdown crossings all over London, you know exactly how long you have to get to the other side.

Piano man:
Eli Pace as Billy Joel

Next best thing to Billy

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

UPTOWN Girl is the chart-topping Billy Joel song most of us are acquainted with.

And at Wylyotts Theatre on Sunday night you'll get a reminder of just how many other hits the Grammy-awarded winning American singer songwriter had.

His magical music is recreated when British singer-songwriter Elio Lane and his six-piece band bring their touring Billy Joel Songbook show to the Potters Bar venue, in Darkes Lane.

Joel is one of Elio's musical heroes.

The 49-year-old achieved a lifelong ambition three years ago when he was invited to "fill Joel's shoes" and star in a series of special reunion concerts in the States with the singer's original touring 1971-72 band recreating the historic Sigma Sound recordings.

"On the radio you may hear the biggest hits like Uptown girl occasionally," said Elio, "but Billy Joel has so many amazing songs which tell fascinating stories that you don't hear very often."

The critically-acclaimed show is packed with 30 of Joel's hits including the massive Uptown Girl, Just the Way You Are and My Life as well as fan favourites Scenes From An Italian Restaurant, Goodnight Saigon and Piano Man.

Elio, who has performed with Queen's Brian May, Huey Lewis, Katie Melua, Craig David, Don McClean, Glenn Campbell and Martha Reeves, among others, in a career spanning 25 years, added: "With Billy Joel only performing a handful of shows every few years, there are many fans out there who have never had the chance to hear his music live and our show reproduces the excitement and wonderful tunes from one of his concerts."

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST (PG, 129 mins)

If it's not Baroque, don't fix it. Those immortal words, uttered in jest by Cogsworth, the talking clock in the 1991 animated Beauty And The Beast during a guided tour of his master's castle, are largely heeded by director Bill Condon for this ravishing live action remake.

The charm, sweetness, heart-tugging romance, infectious songs and rumbustious humour of the original – Disney's finest hand-drawn animation – have been lovingly polished by screenwriters Stephen Chbosky and Evan Spiliotopoulos.

They embellish perfection with original flourishes to set this handsomely mounted tale as old as time apart from its predecessor, including melancholic flashbacks and a curious interlude of time travel that confirms the grim fate of Belle's mother.

A few favourite moments, which work beautifully in animated form, but might seem outlandish in the flesh, have been lost in translation, including Gaston's virtuoso egg juggling and Belle's serenade to a flock of hungry sheep.

Verses of the Oscar-winning songbook composed by Alan Menken with lyrics by Howard Ashman have been nipped and tucked, then heightened with lush orchestration.

Three sparkling new ballads, courtesy of Menken and lyricist Tim Rice, sit handsomely in this exalted musical company, including a soaring lament of longing for the Beast entitled Evermore that swoons: "I let her steal into my melancholy heart/It's more than I can bear."

Us too.

Strong-willed bookworm Belle (Emma Watson) continues to rebuff the amorous advances of preening Gaston (Luke Evans), who wonders how he'll know when he is in love.

"You'll feel nauseous!" retorts manservant Le Fou (Josh Gad).

Before Gaston can find out, Belle trades places with her inventor father Maurice (Kevin Kline) as eternal prisoner of an accursed Beast (Dan Stevens) in his crumbling stronghold.

The gloom of incarceration is lifted by the kindness of enchanted servants, including tightly-wound clock Cogsworth (Sir Ian McKellen), flirtatious candlestick Lumiere (Ewan McGregor), clinking teapot Mrs Potts (Emma Thompson) and her teacup son Chip (Nathan Mack).

As petals of an enchanted rose fall, Belle glimpses beneath the fur of her tormented host and acknowledges that "there may be something there that wasn't there before".

Distinguished by stunning production design, this Beauty And The Beast doesn't quite scale the dizzy heights of its animated predecessor, but comes delightfully close.

Watson is a spirited heroine and is blessed with a sweet singing voice. Stevens teases out the humanity of his fallen prince.

Both cede the limelight to the twin comic tornadoes of Evans and Gad, who elevate their homoerotic bromance and bring the tavern down with the lyrically wicked sing-along Gaston.

Lumiere's eye-popping Busby Berkeley-esque Be Our Guest is still a showstopper, augmented with shimmering digital effects, and the title song performed by Thompson brings a lump to the throat.

Not once but twice upon a time, Condon's film promises and delivers a deliciously happy every after.

Dandara set to unveil stunning four-bedroom Show Home at The Cardinals

Anticipation builds as Dandara prepares to debut The York at its popular Cheshunt development

Dandara, the award-winning property developer, has announced its beautiful four-bedroom Show Home – The York – will launch over the weekend of Saturday 18 and Sunday 19 March, at its much sought after Cheshunt development.

With just seven of The York house types remaining across the whole development, interest is expected to be extremely high over the launch weekend, especially as this is the last opportunity to reserve one of these stunning properties.

Based in the heart of Cheshunt and just 14 miles from central London, The Cardinals is a delightful collection of three and four-bedroom homes, situated on the former site of St Mary's High School on Churchgate.

From a modern fitted kitchen by Moores with appliances by AEG and Zanussi, to elegant bathrooms accentuated by Sottini sanitary ware and ceramic floor tiling, The York is an extremely spacious detached family home, carefully crafted to handle the rigours of modern family living.

With prices starting from £550,000, for buyers looking to enter the housing market for the first time or those who are trying to take a step up the property ladder, The York is available as part of the Government's Help to Buy scheme.

Susie Bennett, Dandara's UK Sales Director for the South East, said: "Everyone at Dandara is extremely excited to welcome the public to our four-bedroom Show Home launch weekend. The unveiling of our three-bedroom Show Home – The Windsor – in January was hugely successful and we expect the same later this month.

"Situated less than 1.5 miles from Cheshunt Rail Station, with direct services to London

Liverpool Street taking under 25 minutes, it's no surprise The Cardinals is proving extremely popular, with properties being snapped up quickly.

"The Cardinals is a superb development and we expect this fantastic house type to make its future-owners extremely happy."

All properties sold at The Cardinals include a 10-year structural warranty and a two-year Dandara warranty. Dandara also has a dedicated customer care team ready to answer queries and concerns. To register your interest in The Cardinals, please call 01992 630255 or visit www.cardinalscheschunt.co.uk.

This car will get you noticed

By Jack Evans

A NEW Ferrari is a pretty big deal. The 488 GTB is the latest high-performance offering from Maranello and a car designed to try and eclipse the awe-inspiring 458 Italia.

That car was powered by a 4.5-litre naturally-aspirated V8 – a true fire-cracker of an engine which gave the 458 all the frenetic, tip-toe energy you could want from an Italian supercar. The 488 GTB, in comparison, is powered by a 3.9-litre twin-turbocharged V8.

Moving to forced induction was a big move for Ferrari, especially given the reputation set by the 458. However, with 661bhp and 760Nm on tap, the 488 isn't lacking in power.

Make no mistake, the 488 GTB is a pretty looking car. With air intakes sitting in just the right places and a supremely low ride height, it looks just as you would want a supercar to look. Granted, it lacks the out-there styling you'd find on a Lamborghini, but there's little chance people won't notice you in the 488.

Ferrari's image remains impressively strong, with good residuals and reputation meaning that wherever you go, people will stop and stare – but if you're looking for a car that'll take you under the radar, the 488 may not be the one for you.

Despite being a low, two-seater sports car, the 488 GTB offers a decent amount of practicality. There's a boot in the nose with a 230-litre capacity. It provides enough room for two weekend bags, or a week's worth of shopping.

Inside, there's a cupholder and a tray for keys and phone. There's also a small glovebox, which gives a little bit of space for smaller items. A Ferrari supercar is never going to be practical, but the 488 is easier to get along with than you'd expect.

Where things get really interesting is in the low-slung driving position – you feel perfectly set up. It isn't often you get into a car and find yourself in the right place immediately, but that's just what you get in the 488.

With a large windscreen and slim pillars, there's an excellent view of the road ahead, making it a little more comfortable to drive around, especially in towns.

Up and running, you immediately notice just how easy the 488 is to drive. The steering wheel mounted buttons are a little complicated – the lights, indicators and washers are operated here – but after you work that out, it feels quite simple to whisk along. You could almost be fooled into thinking it normal – until you press the accelerator, that is.

The way the 488 gains pace is nothing short of ferocious, with each gear bringing with it another fierce wave of speed. Keep your foot in it and you'll sail past licence-worrying speeds without even realising. Gear-shifts are supremely quick, while the car's throttle response puts any idea that turbocharging negatively affects performance out of your mind.

In figure terms, the 488 GTB will reach 60 in three seconds and will carry on accelerating to a top speed of 205mph, fast in anyone's book. That incredible pace is well matched to a chassis that offers all the agility you could want and while the steering is quick, it makes for a car that eats up corner after corner.

You still need to be on your toes however, as the large rear tyres fitted to the 488 have a tendency to break traction quite easily. Although fitted with cutting-edge traction control systems, the 488 still likes to remind you that it's a Ferrari – and should be treated with respect.

The 488 GTB retails for just under £185,000. However, few cars will actually cost this amount as the options list is almost as impressive as the car's performance.

They looked at 500 models, across a five-year period and discovered that adding newspapers dramatically increases the return on investment of other media.

Over half were service companies who saw the effectiveness of their TV advertising double and their online digital display enjoy a four-fold increase.

Individual categories also saw impressive results. Automotive campaigns clocked a 70% increase. In retail it leapt by 2.8 times. Most remarkable of all, in the financial category, Benchmarking uncovered an increase of 5.7 times.

CUP WIN MARRED BY KANE INJURY

By Dominique Stafford

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR face an anxious wait to see how long Harry Kane will be sidelined for after the star striker picked up an ankle injury over the weekend.

Kane hobbled off in just the seventh minute of Spurs' crushing 6-0 victory at home to Millwall in the quarter-finals of the FA Cup on Sunday and has since undergone scans in order to discover the extent of the problem.

And, with Kane having been ruled out for seven weeks with an injury to the same ankle earlier in the season, manager Mauricio Pochettino admits that it could be some time before the top scorer is able to return to action.

"He twisted his ankle – the same one that was hurt against Sunderland," he said. "Now it is a matter of waiting.

"It's difficult. It looks like a similar situation to Sunderland, but we'll see. We need to wait and be positive.

"We can't cry about it now. We have enough players to try and replace him. When you lose a player like Harry you know you'll miss him. But it's important for the people who play in his position to score goals."

Kane's injury overshadowed a terrific performance from Tottenham, who outclassed Millwall in the last ever FA Cup tie at White Hart Lane to set up a showdown against Chelsea in the final four of the competition.

Son Heung-Min – who was allegedly subjected to racist chanting by some of the Millwall fans – led the way with a hat-trick, while Vincent Janssen scored from open play for the first time since joining the club last summer and there were also goals from Christian Eriksen and Dele Alli.

"We played very well," Pochettino said.

"I'm very pleased with the performance, I thought it was fantastic. The job is done and we're in the semi-final at Wembley.

"We started well and after creating a lot of chances we scored and dominated. We controlled the game. I'm happy because in theory this was a difficult game. Millwall arrived at White Hart Lane in very good form, they beat three Premier League teams in the FA Cup and the way we took to the game was fantastic.

"That is the mentality we need to keep and to improve every day. You can only improve if you are available to try every day, every training session and it's not a secret, if you give your best every day, you can achieve that."

While Heung-Min stole the show with his first hat-trick for the club, the loudest cheers of the afternoon were reserved for Janssen's goal.

The striker has struggled to make an impact at Spurs since signing from AZ Alkmaar – with all four of his previous goals for the club having come from the penalty spot – and he was delighted to have got his name on the scoresheet.

"The crowd reaction to the goal was fantastic," Janssen said. "It's nice to see they were so happy for me. I've worked hard for that moment and it was nice to see the boys happy for me as well.

"If you are a footballer that's what you want to hear and thanks to the fans, it was amazing. It's fantastic how they support me and I really like that, I really appreciate it. It's amazing to play and hear your name being sung.

"We really wanted to go through. We want to win trophies, we're in the semi-final now and we have to go on and continue our form."

Last-gasp anguish for London Skolars

THE London Skolars suffered an agonising last-gasp 24-22 loss at Newcastle Thunder in rugby league's Kingstone Press League One on Sunday.

The Skolars seemed set to claim their first league win of the season when they led 22-18 and had possession heading into the final minute, but Simona Vavega lashed out at a defender after a tackle and was sent off.

Newcastle took full advantage of their extra man as Ali Blair touched down in the corner from the resulting penalty to level the scores moments before the final hooter and Benn Hardcastle then secured a dramatic victory for the hosts by slotting over the touch-line conversion with the last kick of the game.

The Skolars had dominated the early part of the game and opened the scoring when Sam Nash collected Phil Lyon's offload and raced to the line. Aaron Small added a second try and Lyon converted both scores to leave them 12-0 ahead.

However, Newcastle hit back through Brett Waller's converted try, and although Lyon slotted over a penalty for the visitors, further tries from Danny Nicklas and Derrell Olpherts late in the first half levelled the scores at 14-14 by the interval.

Another Lyon penalty put the Skolars back ahead, but the momentum was with the hosts at this stage and they went in front for the first time on 54 minutes when Blair touched down.

To their credit, the visitors refused to let their heads drop and – after Lyon had left the field with a shoulder injury – they restored their advantage 13 minutes from time as Lamont Bryan collected Matt Davis' pass and touched down for a try that Sam Nash converted.

But the Skolars' efforts proved to be in vain as they were denied at the death – and a bad ending to the clash for the visitors further deteriorated when Small was dismissed for dissent after the final hooter had gone.

The London Skolars visit Swinton Lions in the fourth round of the Ladbrokes Challenge Cup on Saturday, knowing that victory could earn them a tie against Super League opposition.

Borough maintain their play-off push

HARINGEY BOROUGH kept up their push for a place in the Ryman League North Division play-offs by easing to a 4-1 victory at Heybridge Swifts on Saturday.

A brace from Chris Benjamin and an Anthony McDonald goal put in-form Borough 3-0 up at the interval, and although Luke Hornsley pulled one back, the visitors held firm and Ralston Gabriel added a late fourth as they climbed up into sixth in the table – just a point adrift of fifth-placed Cheshunt with a superior goal difference.

Although Heybridge looked dangerous in the early exchanges, it was Borough who broke the deadlock on 19 minutes when a drag back from McDonald fooled Aliou Njie and he coolly slotted home.

The visitors went on to take complete control of the match by scoring twice in quick succession in the closing stages of the first period as Benjamin burst clear of the defence and drilled past keeper Danny Sambridge on 39 minutes before the same player netted again with a header on the stroke of the interval.

However, Heybridge gave themselves a glimmer of hope by pulling one back within four minutes of the restart – Hornsley scoring from close range following a Jack Cawley long throw.

The hosts attacked with purpose after this as they looked to further reduce their deficit, but they struggled to break down a resolute visiting defence and were restricted to half chances.

Borough were able to hold firm without conceding again though, and they wrapped up a convincing win by adding a late fourth when Gabriel took full advantage of hesitation in the home defence by poking the ball into the net.

Meanwhile, Monday night saw Borough ease to a 5-2 victory at home to Ryman South outfit Greenwich Borough in the London Senior Cup.

Gabriel and Joshua Willer both scored twice for the hosts, with McDonald also on target.

Haringey Borough host Great Wokingham Rovers on Saturday (3pm).
